EFFORTS OF U. S. DELEGATES ARE SET AT NAUGHT

Requests for Permission to Examine Concessions in China Refused

OTHERS ADOPTED

Action Regarded by Champions of Proposal as Near Disaster. —Others Say Rejection Not Important

Washington, Jan. 19.—The American delegation was defeated in the Far Eastern Committee yesterday in what has been regarded by many as the most important section of the Hughes Chinese open door resolution —the fourth article under which existing concessions would be submitted to the international board of reference for examination and report. The Japanese led the attack.

Members of the American delegation insisted that the defeat was unimportant and that the other three articles of the resoluion, which were adopted unanimously, constitute an achievement of great value, but that optimistic view is not general by any means. Champions of the Chinese view the defeat on the fourth article as little less than a disaster.

They have been calling insistently since the Conference started work for remedial action upon the grabbing of spheres of influence and concessions that have made mock of open door declarations in the past. Wanting, of course, such a strong restatement of the open door policy as is contained in the first three articles of the Hughes resolution, they have argued with great vigor that to give such a restatement full life and character the Conference should attempt to correct some of the old violations.

When Mr. Hughes offered his revised resolution yesterday and it was found to contain provisions that offered possibility at least for review of past abuses, the Chinese and their friends looked upon it as a fine effort to undo old wrongs. More than that, they saw in the American move evidence that there was reality in the numerous reports circulated in the last week or so to the effect that Mr. Hughes and the others in the American delegation had determined to make a fight all down the line for what the Chinese claim to be justice.

Now, the Chinese not only realize that their hope of getting unjust existing concessions up for review, under the Hughes resolution, has faded, but they fear that the position taken by the American delegation when Baron Shidehara, for the Japanese, attacked the fourth article today tends to preclude any further effecual effort by the Americans to undo past happenings. The friends of the Chinese would have had the American delegation make a stronger fight for the fourth article than appears to have been made in today's session of the committee.

Evidently the American delegation did not go very far in support of the article. One of the spokesmen for the delegation, in explaining what had happened, first made the point that the adoption of the balance of the resolution was a great victory then said that the rejection of the fourth article had little effect, and finally, in response to a question whether the elimination of that article did not preclude any action under the resolution on existing concessions, he made an emphatic impromptu speech on the proposition that this is a conference and not a parliament, that a majority vote does not rule and that there is no way to make a nation (meaning Japan) accept resolutions that she does not want.

The vigor of this important speech, in response to a question indicated very plainly that, while the American delegation publicly holds that the loss of the fourth article is not important, the members of the delegation are already restive under the disappointment of the Chinese and the possible effect upon public opinion in this country and China, and also the effect upon opinion in the Senate, where the moves in the Chinese situation are being watched closely. As a matter of fact, the difference between the statements on the matter made by members of the delegation and the strong speeches made by Mr. Hughes in reply to antagonistic inquiries from M. Sarraut, is so wide as to weaken greatly the delegation's present attitude.

Small House Burned

A defective flue was responsible for a fire at 104 Wolfe Street at 11:15 o'clock this morning, which gutted the interior of the house, a small frame structure occupied by Bessie Hodge, colored.

During the progress of the blaze, Arthur Skillman, driver of motor truck No. 1, was knocked out by a stream of water and was conveyed to the hospital and treated by Dr. Ryder. His injuries are not serious.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan. 19.—It is just possible that President Harding will attend the Masonic ceremonies in Alexandria on George Washington's Birthday. On that day there will be special services by the George Washington National Memorial Association, which will be universal in their character.

A Committee of Washington Masons, consisting of J. Harry Cunningham and Lord Keiper both past Grand Masters of the District of Columbia Lodge of Masons, called at the White House today to extend an invitation to the President to be present on this occasion. While he did not give them any definite answer he promised to take the matter under careful consideration. It is believed that if his official duties will permit, President Harding will embrace the opportunity to affiliate with some of his fellow Masons on this occasion.

Representative Bascom Slemp, dictator of Republican patronage in the State of Virginia, stated to the Gazette correspondent today that it would probably be two weeks yet before any announcement is made as to the successor to Postmaster Smith at Alexandria.

"I have not heard from the Civil Service Commission on the result of the examination of candidates for the Alexandria office held on December 20," declared Mr. Slemp today, "and I did not look for any decision inside of two weeks anyhow."

The Virginia member intimated that he might leave the naming of a postmaster at Alexandria in the hands of Joseph L. Crupper Republican State Chairman, former postmaster and former resident of Alexandria.

"Naturally, I would be expected to be consulted before any nomination goes to the Senate," said Slemp.

There are at present 104,000 vocationally handicapped veterans in training under the Rehabilitation Division of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. They are in training in all of

At the surrender at Appomattox there were present but twenty-six members of the 17th Regiment and eleven other Alexandrians who were attached to other commands in the army. "Marse Robert Is Asleep"

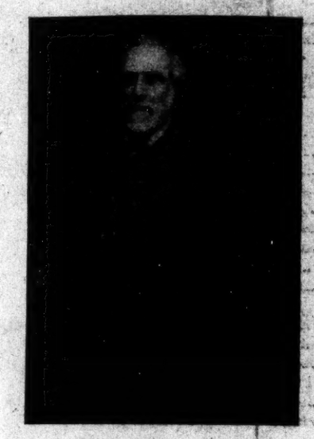
By MISS S. B. VALENTINE

The following verses are based upon an incident of the Civil War. Gen. B. D. of the Confederate Army, related the story to the author. General Lee, sorely fatigued aftr a hard day's march, lay down on a log beside the road and quickly fell asleep. Soon a column of soldiers came down the road, laughing and talking as they marched along. A burly trooper, who had been standing guard by the General's improvised couch, rushed out into the road and whispered "Hush! Marse Robert is asleep!" The word was passed down the line, and the ranks, instantly subdued, tiptoed past their sleeping leader.



Had you heard that distant tramping
On that glowing summer day!
Had you seen our comrades running
To meet us on the way!
Oh, the wondrous, sudden silence,
Th' unmilitary creep,
As down the line that caution ran,
"Marse Robert is asleep."

In glorious old Westminster,
No monument of war,
No marble story, half so grand
As this our army saw!
Our leafy old Westminster—
Virginia's woods—now keep
Immortal that old whisper,
"Marse Robert is asleep!"

There lay that knightly figure,
One hand upon his sword,
The other pressed above his heart,
A vow without a word!
Two laurel leaves had fluttered down,
For flowers their vigil keep,
And crown'd him, though I think they knew
"Marse Robert was asleep!"

He's yours and mine, Hurrah!
He's yours and mine, Hurrah!
These tears you've shed have sealed the past
And closed the wound of war!
Thus clasping hands, Old Blue Coat,
We'll swear by the tears you weep,
The sound of war shall be muffled,
"Marse Robert is asleep!"

Give me your hand, Old Blue Coat,
Let's talk of this a while.
For the prettiest march of all the war
Was this of rank and file!—
Was the passing of that army,
When 'twas hard, I ween, to keep
Those men from crying out "Hurrah!
Marse Robert is asleep."

As we clasp hands, Old Blue Coat,
List, brother of the North:
Had foreign foe assail'd your homes,
You then had known his worth!
Unbroken vigil o'er those homes
It had been his to keep:
Step lightly over the border, then—
"Marse Robert is asleep!"

BOOTLEGGERS AND POLICE IN PISTOL BATTLE

Exciting Chase of Whiskey Car Staged This Morning in Fairfax

THREE MEN IN CAR

Rum Carriers Return Fire of Police—Twenty-Seven Shots Exchanged—Men Escape.

An exciting pistol battle was staged this morning in Fairfax county a few miles west of Alexandria by bootleggers in a highpowered automobile and the members of the police department of this city. The bootleggers made good their escape. It is believed by the police that they live in Washington. Twenty-seven shots were exchanged all together.

The police were tipped off by the Fredericksburg authorities that a liquor laden car was enroute to Alexandria and picked it up. Soon as the message was received Chief Goods, Sergt. Campbell and Policemen Welker and Lawrence Padgett started out in pursuit of the car.

The officers were in two automobiles and after jockying around different roads, one party going toward Hunting Creek and the other out Duke street toward Telegraph road. About 9:30 o'clock the officers saw the suspected car coming over telegraph road and both cars of the police met at what is known as the Toll Gate, at the head of Duke street. They immediately chased the suspected car and the alleged bootleg car put on considerable more speed and then the officers realized they were up against him if they depended on speed. They fired several shots. The shots were directed at the wheel of the machine. The bootleggers returned the fire firing twice as they sped. Throughout the chase the officers pumped lead at the fleeing machine without avail, a total of about twenty-five shots all told being fired by the police. Three men were in the whisky car.

In a comparatively short time the bootleg car had outdistanced the Alexandria officers' cars and had made good their escape. Officers declare the bootleg car was filled with whisky in fruit jars.

The Alexandria policemen returned to headquarters and shortly before noon Sergt. Wilkinson received a message that a big touring car had been broken down in the vicinity of Mount Ida, north of this city.

Sergt. Wilkinson and the other officers who were in the first chase soon were speeding to the spot designated. Upon arriving on Mount Vernon Avenue between Lloyd and Mount Ida they found a big touring car with the left front wheel off. The occupants of the car had deserted it and evidentally had gone to Washington. Two Washington mechanics who had received instructions to tow the disabled car into Washington were the only ones on the scene.

There was no sign of whisky about the car and Chief Goods says the car looked similar to the one they were chasing. The Washington police were notified and they are making an investigation of the case.

COOKING CLASSES TO START SOON

Cooking Classes Teach Housekeepers to Serve Economical Meals

Every thrifty woman knows how to cook and to cook well, whether it is necessary for her to demonstrate her ability every day in her own kitchen or whether she merely directs the culinary arrangements of her own home and delegates the actual preparation of her meals to some servant of uncertain abilities. No woman can properly manage her household and plan such meals as are best suited for the needs of the individual members of her family who has not had some training in food values and nutrition. What the business man needs, what the growing child needs—these and other problems are all matters for study by the woman who has the best interests of her family at heart. Even if these needs are known however, many a meal may be spoiled and in consequence much of the family budget waisted, by the improper preparation of the food which has been provided.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. in its cooking classes aims to supply just the sort of training which the housekeeper needs. Beginning the first week in February, the second cooking course of the year will be opened at the Chamber of Commerce kitchen, with Miss Inez Rea as instructor. Ten lessons consisting of lectures and actual demonstrations will be given and the following subjects touched upon: quick raising doughs and batters, soups, sauces, salad dressings, cake, cake icings and fillings, omelets, desserts, souffles, garnishing and decorating, preparation of vegetables and meats.

One enthusiastic cook who profited by the last course and now treasures a splendid collection of valuable recipes which she derived from it, received some unusual compliments upon the cake which she recently served to a group which she had the pleasure of entertaining. Every one wanted to know the secret of the cake's lightness and fine texture, and how the icing was made also—the combination was so delectable. It is some of the little things which are taught in this class which make one's cooking a litle bit out of the ordinary, and especially pleasing to the discriminating judge of good cookery.

All those who are interested in joining the next cooking class should call the Y. M. C. A. office and register her name with the office secretary at once.

IDENTIFY MAN AT HOSPITAL AS H. R. SILLECK

J. Herbert Taylor, Finger Print Expert, Makes Identification

FATHER ENROUTE

Silleck a World War Veteran and Lives in Greenwich, Conn.—Had Skull Fractured Last March.

The stranger suffering from loss of memory who has been at the Alexandria Hospital since Monday afternoon last night was identified by J. Herbert Taylor, of this city, chief of the identification bureau of the Navy Department, as Henry Robert Silleck, son of Elberk A. Silleck, of Greenwich, Connecticut. His father is proprietor of a hotel in that city.

Mr. Taylor after identifying him by means of the finger print system notified the Alexandria police and subsequently called on the long distance telephone Elberk A. Silleck, father of the man and notified him that his son was in Alexandria.

The father is now enroute to this city and it is expected that he will arrive here tonight and take his son back to Greenwich.

Silleck when informed of his correct name told Mr. Taylor and the hospital authorities that he had no recollection of the name. He was again questioned today but he could not remember the name.

Mr. Taylor after taking his finger prints and photograph delved into the records of the War Department and ascertained that Silleck enlisted in the army April 5, 1918, served as sergeant in the medical department at Camp Upton, N. Y., and was honorably discharged at Camp Dix, N. J., September 26, 1919. His enlistment papers gave his father as next of kin, and this is how Mr. Taylor communicated so quickly with the father.

According to Mr. Silleck his son suffered a fracture of the skull in March, 1921, and he believed he had entirely recovered.

A short time ago his father said he left for New York to accept a position and this was the last he heard from him until informed of his son's whereabouts by Mr. Taylor.

Silleck walked into police headquarters at 2:30 o'clock last Monday afternoon and told Police Sergt. Wilkinson that he had lost his identify and asked the sergeant to help him trace himself and where he was from. The man was conveyed to the Alexandria Hospital and treated by Dr. S. B. Moore.

Since Silleck has been at the hospital many persons from Washington have called to question him thinking perhaps the man might be some missing person they were searching for.

When the man's clothing was examined at the time he was brought to the hospial the name "Silleck" was found printed in the pocket of his trousers. He, however, when questioned had no recollection of that name.

Mr. Taylor who lives in this city became interested in the case after seeing the newspaper accounts of the man and he lost no time in identifying the man.

ROBERT E. LEE

Today will be observed in every Southern state as the anniversary of the natal day of the South's greatest citizen and greatest soldier. One whose incomparable private virtues have left his name a shining mark for the Ages. One whose soldierly qualities have ranked him among the first military geniuses of all time. One whose exalted character and noble example served his country well in the dark days of the later sixties. Enshrined in the hearts of his fellow-countrymen, as he is, his fame but grows brighter and dearer with each approaching anniversary.

To night the sons and daughters of his beloved Southland here in Alexandria, will observe the occasion with proper ceremony. Brilliant speeches, reverent reminiscence, and solemn prayer will again attest the devotion of Southern men and women forever loyal to the consecrated memory of the Lost Cause.

Our own silver-haired veterans of the Confederacy will once again mingle with their fellow-citizens and receive that tribute of affection and veneration which is so justly theirs.

The Gazette, in its columns of today, likewise pays its tribute to the memory of the South's great Chieftain.

OUR NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL

We compliment Councilman Claude W. Fletcher on his remarks of yesterday, to our reporter. Especially are we in accord with his views on the need of a new school. If we were to select the most important of the dozen items at our masthead as needed to make the Greater Alexandria, we should probably name the new school building as coming first.

It is a matter of congratulation to our citizens that this is among the certainties. We are promised that it will be ready for occupancy next autumn, and we should be exceedingly loath to doubt this Not over sixty per cent of our children of school age are attending school, and this is one of the grievous lacks that must be remedied. The encouraging feature is, however, that men like Claude Fletcher see this and can be counted upon in the fight for betterment in our educational facilities all along the line.

Mausoleum dedicated and recumbent statue unveiled, June 28, 1883.

THE LEE STATUTE AND MAUSOLEUM

On the day of General Lee's funeral a Lee Memorial Association was formed to erect some fitting monument as a token of the love and admiration of his countrymen. The President of the Association was General John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky; the Chairman of its Executive Committee, General W. N. Pendleton, General Lee's Chief of Artillery.

Mrs. Mary Custis Lee was consulted as to the nature of the memorial, and at her suggestion the celebrated sculptor, Ed. V. Valentine, who had just modeled from life a bust of General Lee, was called into consultation. At Mrs. Lee's suggestion also, it was decided to adopt a recumbent figure of General Lee, asleep on the field of battle, and place it on a white marble sarcophagus suitably inscribed and decorated.

The commission was formally awarded to Mr. Valentine on November 24, 1870, a year later his model was approved, and on April 1, 1875, the monument was completed in Mr. Valentine's Richmond studio.

The students of Richmond College asked the privilege of bearing the expenses of its transportation and furnishing an escort. On April 13, 1875, a great procession accompanied the statue to the boat-landing, and four days later the long river journey was ended and the statue formally consigned to the guardianship of the students of Washington and Lee University.

The Executive Committee then turned its attention to the still greater task of erecting a suitable mausoleum and in 1877 approved and adopted a design kindly furnished, as a labor of love, by J. Crawford Neilson, a leading architect of Baltimore.

In 1882 the mausoleum committee, having exhausted their funds, ordered to transfer the building and monument to Washington and Lee University if it would complete the work. This proposal was accepted, the mausoleum completed, and the 28th of June, 1883, was selected as the day for the formal unveiling and dedication.

Honorable Jefferson Davis, of Mississippi, and Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia, were selected to deliver orations, the first on General Lee's military career, the latter on his life and character as a citizen. Mr. Davis, however, to the regret of all, was prevented by ill-health and growing infirmities from making the journey.

On the 28th of June the monument was unveiled amid a vast assemblage of ex-Confederates and leading citizens from all parts of the country. A great procession first visited Jackson's grave and covered it with flowers, then returned to hear Senator Daniel's thrilling oration and the reading of "The Sword of Lee" by its celebrated and beloved author, Father Ryan.

Fifty survivors of the Rockbridge Artillery, using two of their ancient First Manassas guns, now in the keeping of the Virginia Military Institute, under their old leader, Col. Wm. T. Poague, fired a last salute as the mausoleum doors were thrown open and the statue was unveiled by Stonewall Jackson's daughter, Julia.

It was a great and solemn day in the history of the South and of the nation; a great and immortal name, a heart-stirring oration worthy of its theme, a majestic monument typifying in spotless marble the purity of a matchless character, a second Mount Vernon where never-ending streams of reverent pilgrims shall evermore be hushed and uplifted, a great and sacred shrine, the South's Holy of Holies, where the spirit of the heroic Past keeps watch and ward forever over the mighty dead!

"He was a foe without hate, a friend without treachery, a soldier without cruelty, and a victim without murmuring. He was a public officer without vices, a private citizen without wrong, a neighbor without reproach, a Christian without hypocrisy, and a man without guile. He was Caesar without his ambition, Frederick without his tyranny, Napoleon without his selfishness, and Washington without his reward. He was as obedient to authority as a servant and royal in authority as a king. He was as gentle as a woman in life, pure and modest as a virgin in thought, watchful as a Roman vestal, submissive to law as Socrates, and grand in battle as Achilles."

CHRIST CHURCH LOAN EXHIBIT

Additional List of Valuable Antiques To Be Exhibited at Parish Hall Next Week

Because the patriotic and public spirited women of the Cameron Club, Daughters of the American Revolution, Colonial Dames and United Daughters of the Confederacy are not willing that Alexandria should fall below the standard set by other cities in the Historical Pageant planned for next spring, they are bending all their efforts toward making a success of the Loan Exhibit to be held on January 25th and 26th in Christ Church Parish Hall, Offers of valuable and interesting heirlooms are pouring in from every side. The rooms of Christ Church Parish Hall, which will be open to the public from two till ten P. M., on these dates, will be crowded with beautiful antiques. The admission fee of fifty cents has been placed at this low figure to make it passible for every person in Alexandria to view this collection and hear the history of the exhibits. The following is a partial list of articles offered since yesterday:

Posters of great artistic merit and striking design are being placed in the leading hotels of Washington. These are the work of J. M. Dinwiddie of this city and have attracted much favorable comment.

BIBLE SERVICES

Great interest was shown in the Second Baptist revival, last night. A large congregation was present, and Rev. E. M. Ramsey preached a powrful sermon on the "The Resurrection Ministry of Jesus Christ."

Mr. James McCravy is the music director and soloist. He sings the gopel with power. There is a large chorus choir of adults, and a large class of children who sing very effectively under Mr. McCravy's leadership. Besides being a singer, Mr. McCravy uses the violin in leading the music.

Many people came forward last night on the invitation of the evangelist rededicating their lives to the srvice of the Lord.

There is a prayer meeting every afternoon in the church at 2 o'clock. ld by Mr. Ramsey and Mr. McCravy. The meeting on yesterday was a great spiritual uplift.

Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

How Did You Earn Your First Dollar?

National Thrift Week, January 17-23, fostered by the Y. M. C. A., which has come to be a stirring yearly event, aroused a lot of interest last year on the question of how men who have acquired a fair competence made their first dollar.

You would naturally think that a fellow would stick to the game at which he made his first dollars, on the theory that he had an especial fitness for work that earned him a whole dollar as a reward. The fact is, however, that most first dollars were earned in different fields from those from which future wealth is harvested. The world is full of Thomas A. Edisons who earned their first dollars selling newspapers.

It would be interesting to have the reminiscences of some of our subscribers on this subject of how they earned their first dollar. If you enjoy "looking back," do it on this very interesting subject of how you earned your first dollar.

Those who earned that first dollar a good many years back could probably give the rising generation some interesting side slants on the amount of work a man or boy had to do for a dollar in those days.

There has been no war in Sweden for a century.

The mineral output of Alaska in 1920 was valued at $23,307,767.

CANON McCOMB

Addresses Large Gathering at St. Paul's on Power of Prayer.

A large audience greeted Canon McComb at the Conference on Prayer in St. Paul's Episcopal Church last night. Professors and students from the Seminary, and members of several denominations were present. Canon McComb declared, that today, men of science, and philosophers as well as religious people, are agreed that results are actually brought about by prayer. Many questions were asked and suggestions made by members of the audience and very comprehensive answers were given.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of West End School met in that building on Wednesday afternoon. An appropriation was made providing for supplementary readers in the primary grades. A second fund was appropriated for the establishment of a school library, this being the first local school to avail itself of the State Aid Fund, in connection with such library now available through State Legislation.

Matters relating to the general condition of the school were taken up by the patrons and discussed, and following an inspection of the building, the meeting adjourned.

You Wouldn't Keep Your Foot in Splints

Even when you have to wear splints for a broken bone, the doctor removes them as soon as possible. If he didn't the muscles would eventually atrophy.

When you wear a shoe with a stiff shank, it's just as if your arch were bound against a splint. But when you wear the Cantilever Shoe, the flexible arch of your shoe, though it gives support, bends with the arch of your foot. The muscles are encouraged to exercise and grow strong, and flat fect are prevented and corrected.

The wonderful feling of ease in Cantilever Shoes is partly due to the natural inner sole-line. Partly to the proper placing of the heels. But chiefly, it is because Cantilevers are made to accommodate the human foot instead of being accommodated at the expense of it.

You'll like the styles, too. Fine leathers, well-made shoes.

the well known trades and professions. Some of them are in training in institutions such as colleges and trade schools, while others are receiving training "on the job."

There are a total of 11,420 in training in mechanical line. Of this number 3,525 are in institutional training, while 7,868 are in placement training or as it is sometimes called, "training on the job." The majority of these men are in training in auto mechanics. There are 1,078 men in training in furniture construction and repair. To date eleven men have completed their training in this work and are now receiving salary of $1,800 a year, which is $500 more than the average pre-war salary of this class of trainees.

Dr. Hubert Work of Colorado, seems slated for the position of Postmaster General in the event Will H. Havs is able to carry out his plan to make a satisfactory contract to become head of moving picture producing and distributing interests. If Work is chosen, he will be known as the official "headsman" of the Republican administration. He is being supported by Republican Senators and members of the House for the place because he is known to feel that every Democratic postmaster in the United States, North, East, South and West, should be ousted from office after the expiration of the four years' term of office. There was some complaint heard among "deserving" Republicans that the present Postmaster General was reluctant to remove Democratic post masters who had proved their efficiency and ability in the handling of their offices. Mr. Work holds no such ideas. He is a spoilsman pure and simple and believes in the good old Republican doctrine that "to the victors belong the spoils." His appointment would be eminently satisfactory to the Republican patronage seekers, therefore, and that is why it is said his chances of being selected as Mr. Hays' successor are the brightest.

President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes are still awaiting further reports from Ambassador George Harvey before making up their minds as to whether this Government will participate in the Genoa economic conference arranged by the Allied Supreme Council. While Mr. Harvey has already sent voluminous reports on the meeting of the council at Cannes and has given all possible details of the conversations and agreements that led up to the decision to hold the meeting at Genoa, his government is most anxious to get all possible data on the subject to be included and excluded from the scope of the conference before giving its final decision.

RETAIL CREDIT MEN'S NATIONAL ASSN. ORGANIZED 1912

PAY YOUR BILLS PROMPTLY

Saturday January 21st is Pay Your Bills Promptly Day Of National Thrift Week

This Advertisement is not directed to those who understandingly and intelligently use their credit, but rather to those who habitually and flagrantly abuse it.

If you work for pay you are "in business for yourself." Your stock in trade is "Service." This you sell to your employer. As long as he continues to pay you on a certain date his CREDIT with you is good. But should he FAIL TO PAY, you would be justified in severing relations with him at once.

The merchant to whom you owe last month's bill is your employee. If you have thoughtlessly neglected his PAY DAY, isn't he justified in declining to deliver to your home more merchandise?

How is the merchant to continue to give YOU service on merchandise if he hasn't the money to KEEP UP? You couldn't continue to give service to your employer if he neglected YOUR PAY DAY, could you?

And then there is another very important point you must REMEMBER. If the entire community is prosperous, there are more jobs, more places for you to sell your services. In times of stress EVERY BUSINESS MAN is affected by POOR BUSINESS. Think it over—there is considerable food for thought—and this is the time for SERIOUS THINKING.

Insurance is the indispensable protector of posterity and prosperity. It will pay you to keep your CREDIT INSURED. The only premium required is the prompt discharge of your debts.

Make up Your Mind Today That You Will Pay Your Bills Promptly.
